

1977

Music & Lyrics by Anna Wilson

©2017 Curb Congregation Songs, SESAC.

1977

I always will remember
In my room with a Rhondstat tune
Playin' on the radio

We tried drownin' out the shoutin'
But through the wall
We heard it all before
They had a chance to notice

That their secret was no secret anymore
We learned we were the reason for the battles of the war

Back in 1977

When the storm was never endin'
And time was like a rising tide
Washin' love away
Yeah they ignited, they were warriors
And they thought that they fought for us
But lookin' back I wonder
If they ever should have stayed
Cause we all knew it ended
In 1977

Now I know it wasn't easy
When Mama prayed
A promise made to me
That she'd always keep the family

How the years went by so slowly
I couldn't wait
For my getaway to come
And not have to keep believin'

All the lies we tell ourselves just to survive
You learn to tell yourself when you're a child

All the lies we tell ourselves just to survive
You learn to tell yourself when you're a child

Back in 1977

When the storm was never endin'
And time was like a rising tide
Washin' love away
Yeah they ignited, they were warriors
And they fought their way back for us
But lookin' back I wonder
If they ever should have stayed
Cause we all knew it ended
In 1977

We lost our innocence and now we can't forget
How their happiness was ransom on our heads
I guess we'll never know how the story could have read
Cause we can't go back again
To 1977